TAFTVILLE BLANKED Tri-Village Team Scores Eight Runs in Dayville Game.

Desth of Mrs. Root—Body Cremated.

Mrs. E. E. Root, a long time resident of the camp ground, died on Tuesday at the home of her only child, Charles Root of Boston. Mrs. Root suffered a sheek some time ago and never rallied to her full strength, Earlier in life she was a resident of Tolland, Conn. Miss E. M. Benton of Mount Vernon is at her cottage on Haven avenue. There were times in the game at Dayville Saturday when it seemed as if the reorganized Tri-Village bunch would make as many runs as there are varieties of a certain brand of famous pickles, etc., but the game wasn't long enough. They did manage to pile up a league record of 18 against Taftville, though, which organization from the south end of the circuit was not only whitewashed, but generously enameled. It was such a beating as a team takes once in a lifetime, which is plenty often. The younding of Bill Boucher's slants for a total of 14 hits, three of which were doubles and two tripes, in connection with eight errors, three of which are charged by the scorer against Dugas, who admits he made six, tell a part of the story of why Taftville was so easily put on ice.

But Tri-Village certainly had a right to win. That new man, Evans, who did the box work, is surely one good little pitcher, and there are also some ormal student, has gone to her home n New London for the holiday.

BISHOP BREWSTER

Rt. Rev. Chauncey Bunce Brewster, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Connecticut, made his spring visit to the churches in this end of Windham county Saturday, when he preached at an afternoon service at Christ church in Pomfret and at an evening service at St. Philip's mission in this city.

A LUCKY RUN Saved Wauregan from Desperation in

Twelve innings? No, anxious reader, only nine. But the regulation weekly protest was entered Saturday afternoon when Putnam was handing the premier drubbing of the season to Wauregan up on the Providence street grounds. The visitors took the count to the tune of 10 to 1, but they did not protest about that. It was about an incident of the game, happening in the sixth, when on a collection of five safe bingles, two free passes and a trio of errors Putnam made enough runs to win two or three ordinary games. During the course of the blowup Lizotte, with three men on bases, hit a fiy just outside the diamond, between first and second. Gadbols went after it but did not connect. Everybody trotted around the stations, two men scoring. Wauregan claimed Lizotte out on an infield fly, but Roy declared him safe; hence the kick, which was duly announced.

Wauregan never had a look-in at any stage of the game. Chapelle took his first hammering of the season and was finally pulled out and replaced by Dion. The visitors' errors were some numerous—nine in number. They barely managed to escape a shutout when in the ninth with two men out a timely hit brought in their solitary run.
